On January 28th, 2026, Gerald McGuire and Helen McGuire entered the Marshall's located in the Nashville West shopping center. Marshall's loss prevention personnel provided detectives with security footage of this incident.

Video shows Mr. McGuire and Ms. McGuire enter the store and select a cart. Upon entry, Mr. McGuire is wearing a backpack, and once inside he also selects a reusable shopping bag held for sale and places it into the cart. The pair then head through the various departments of the store, making rapid selections and placing them into the cart. They are seen entering the shoe department, where Mr. McGuire begins to place shoes into his backpack, before zipping it back up and placing it onto his back. The pair then head to handbags, where they place as much merchandise as possible into the reusable shopping bag, before dumping the cart and its remaining contents before heading to the front of the store where they bypass all points of sale and exit with $304.95 worth of concealed merchandise.

Detectives were informed that Mr. McGuire also impacted the 100 Oaks TJ Maxx location on February 1st, and VUPD had an interaction with him later that evening. Detectives reached out to VUPD who were able to provide detectives with still photos from the body worn camera of that interaction, as well as a name and date of birth for Mr. McGuire. Detectives compared the provided footage to the photos from VUPD, Mr. McGuire's most recent DCSO booking photo, and Tennessee driver's license to confirm his identity. Helen McGuire was arrested on July 23rd, 2026, during the commission of a theft from a different Marshall's location. Detectives were able to compare this footage to Ms. McGuire's booking photo and Tennessee driver's license to confirm her identity.
